Call for Papers

The Center for International Community Research (UTAMER) is pleased to announce the third International Congress on Women's Studies (ICOWS 2026), which will be held online on 18–20 December 2026.

The congress brings together researchers from different academic disciplines whose studies focus on women and women-related issues. As in the previous meetings, contributions from different fields are welcome, provided that they are related to the main theme of the congress.

ICOWS also aims to encourage the exchange of knowledge and research experience among scholars working on women's studies and to encourage young researchers to engage with women's studies.

Congress Themes

ICOWS 2026 is open to studies from different academic disciplines focusing on women and women-related issues.

Sample Themes

- Women's Rights and Legal Reforms
- Women in History and Society
- Women in Education, Science and Technology
- Women, Work and Economic Life
- Women and Politics
- Women's Health and Well-being
- Feminist Literature and Art
- Media, Culture and Gender Representation

Studies dealing with the main theme from different disciplinary or interdisciplinary perspectives are also welcome.

Publication Opportunities

Accepted abstracts will be published in the Congress Abstract Proceedings Book with ISBN.

Authors who submit full papers may have their studies published in the Congress Full-Text Proceedings Book with ISBN.

Authors may also choose to submit their full papers to ESAR Journal or Journal JOSE. Papers submitted to these journals will be considered for publication after the completion of the journals' peer-review processes.

Selected full papers may also be considered for inclusion in an edited scholarly volume to be submitted by the publisher for evaluation for inclusion in the Book Citation Index (BKCI). The selection and editorial process will be coordinated by UTAMER, and a separate submission deadline will be announced for this publication.

Participation and Submission

Congress registration and abstract submission will be carried out through the congress website.

Authors who wish to submit a full paper should complete their submission by 24 December 2026.

ICOWS Through the Years

The International Congress on Women's Studies has been organized by UTAMER since 2024.

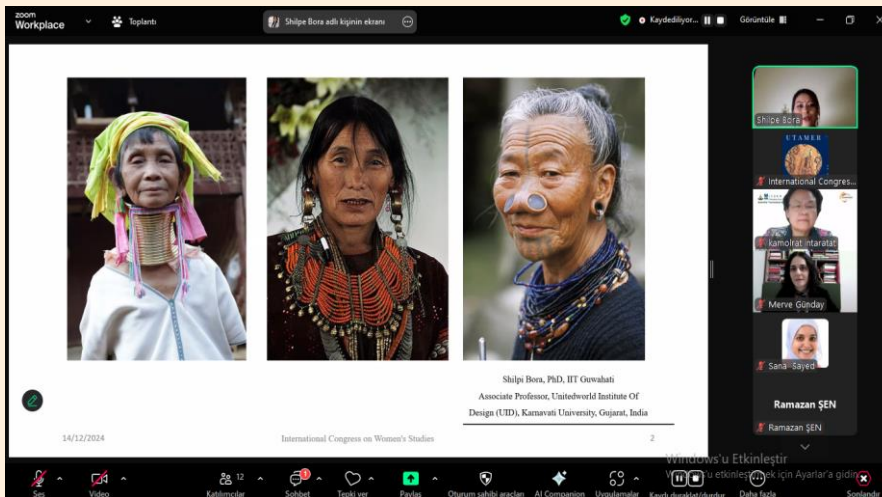

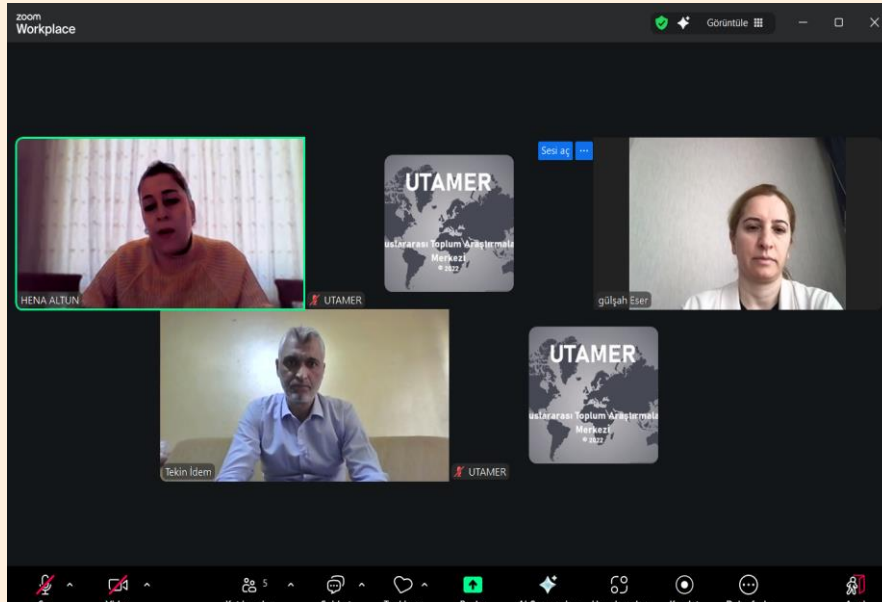

The previous congresses brought together researchers working on women's studies from different countries and academic disciplines. The meetings included presentations on a wide range of subjects related to women, including education, politics, health, law, culture, literature and social life.

ICOWS 2026 will be the third congress in this series.

2024 — First International Congress on Women's Studies

2025 — Second International Congress on Women's Studies
